TWELFTH YEAR

HUGE ARMIES COME TO DEATH GRIP IN FRANCE

Bayonet Against Bayonet, With Trenches 100 Yards Apart. Allies Continue to Push Back Right Wing of Von Kluck's Forces. Germans Hurl Corps After Corps Against Enemy in Vain Attempt to Break Through Center.

On the battlefield, via Paris, Sept. 28. Desperate attempts made by the Germans on the western end of the long line of battle to break through the allies forces which are engaged in a turning movement have resulted in the most furious fighting which has taken place since the beginning of the campaign.

After fighting without respite night and day, corps after corps of Germans were hurled against the flower of the French and English armies today only to be thrown back.

A French lieutenant, M. Verlin, is the hero of the day as the result of an affair in which he was the main figure yesterday. The lieutenant and fifty men of his company were reconnoitering ten miles in advance of the main body on the Oise river when they encountered 5000 Germans. The Frenchmen took refuge in nearby woods and from this shelter fired volleys until only thirteen of their detachment remained alive, and of these five were wounded. The party then crept away. The Germans feared to attack the woods for fear of a trap.

Infantry Bears the Brunt

The infantry bore the brunt of the incessant fighting, but the artillery of both armies continued throughout twenty-four hours to bombard each other's positions. Hand to hand combats occurred at many points and bayonets were used freely.

The French colonial infantry, most of whose men wore many medals for bravery displayed in colonial campaigns, was to the fore and beside these men fought the black Bengalese troops, while further along the line the British troops held an important point with the greatest determination.

The French troops showed more than their accustomed dash in attacks and everywhere acts of wonderful courage were performed. The cavalry also participated in the engagements at many points, the allies horses having enjoyed a long rest, which enabled this arm of the service to distinguish itself. The famous Scots Greys, finding that the color of their horses offered a prominent mark for the German riflemen, have dyed their mounts brown.

Prominent French General Killed

Another prominent French officer, General Marquet, has met death on the field.

At Nubecourt, home of the parents of President Poincare, the Germans broke open the Poincare family vault. It is reported, and buried a number of their dead there. The Germans plundered the town of Valenciennes, demanding from the mayors of neighboring communes lists of the available supplies of clothing and food.

Bordeaux, Sept. 28.—According to dispatches received from the front the Prussian guard has been cut to pieces during the fight of the last three days. The strength of some companies has been reduced from 250 to 100 men. Virtually all of the army officials have been killed or wounded and two battalions have been annihilated.

London, Sept. 28.—The official war information bureau issued the following statement this afternoon. Last night the enemy attacked our line with even more vigor but with no more success. There is no change in the situation. The Germans have gained no ground but the French have advanced here and there.

London.—Operation of His Majesty's able forces on the west coast of Africa have resulted in the unconditional surrender of Duala the capital of Kamerun and of Bonaboy to an Anglo-French force.

Washington.—A dispatch to the French embassy from Bordeaux the Austrians in the south of Przenysl continues their retreat towards the west. In Prussia the attempt of the Germans to assume the offensive to the east of Suwke and south of Grajewo were repulsed.

'THE SCALES OF JUSTICE'

"The Scales of Justice" will be the photo dramatic offering in five reels at the Lyric theatre tomorrow night. A few seasons ago this drama was the theatrical sensation of the United States and it has proved especially adaptable for reproduction in moving pictures. Paul McAllister, the handsome young virile leading man plays the leading masculine part, while other photoplay favorites in the cast are Jane Fearnley, Harold Lockwood, Hal Clarendon, Mark Price, Catherine Lee, Mary Blackburn, Beatrice Moreland, and a score of others.

IS JUDGE AT MANY FAIRS

Prof. John T. Caine, III, Now in Oregon Where He Will Be One of the Officials at State Fair

John T. Caine, III, professor of animal husbandry at the Utah Agricultural College and assistant director of the extension division, has left for Oregon where he will act as judge at the Oregon State Fair. He will assist in the judging of beef cattle. Professor Caine returned to the Agricultural College last Saturday after having spent several days in California where he was judge of beef cattle and dairy cows at the California State Fair.

Associated with Professor Caine at the California Fair were Dr. Carl W. Gay of the University of Pennsylvania and author of two books on judging and horse producing, and Professor H. H. Kildee of the dairy husbandry of Iowa State College of Ames, Iowa. Both these men are notable educators and experts in animal husbandry and were classmates of Professor Caine of the local agricultural college.

The three, upon returning from California, made an automobile trip through Utah. Professor Caine was desirous of showing Utah cattle and horses to the two notable experts. Both Dr. Gay and Prof. Kildee displayed considerable enthusiasm over Utah animals and declared them to be as good, if not better, than found in any other western state.

Dr. Gay and Prof. Kildee visited the Utah Agricultural College while in Logan. While only a short while could be spent at the college, the two eastern educators had opportunity to investigate the animal husbandry department of the institution and declared it to be one of the best they had had the pleasure to inspect. Both displayed astonishment over the equipment at the college which, they said, was better than most institutions of the country and equally as fine as that found in the largest agricultural colleges.

After spending a short while at the college, the two distinguished visitors were rushed to Ogden in an automobile to catch the evening train east. Many of the farms and ranches of Cache valley were inspected and the two were deeply impressed with the condition of the livestock.

In southern Utah the two easterners displayed keen delight at the healthy and thrifty condition of the livestock and expressed an eagerness to be spectators at the county fairs and Utah state fair.

George B. Caine, assistant professor of animal husbandry at the Agricultural College, and Dr. William E. Carroll, professor on animal husbandry and assistant director of the school of agriculture, are judging livestock at county fairs of the state. Dr. Carroll recently judged the cattle at Cedar City and Mr. Caine is Judge at the Uinta, Carbon and Emery county fairs.

MORE HONOR FOR DR. GEO. THOMAS

Has Been Nominated to Become a Member of the National Institute of Social Science

Dr. George Thomas, director of the school of commerce of the Utah Agricultural College of Logan, has been invited to become a member of the national Institute of Social Science, one of the most notable educational societies of the United States and for the membership of which only the highest scholars are sought.

Dr. Thomas received the following notification of the honor:

"By nomination of the executive council of the American Social Science association, and in recognition of the distinction attained by you in education, you are hereby invited to become a member of the National Institute of Social Sciences.

Signed, W. C. LEGRENDE, General Secretary

Dr. Thomas' name was proposed by Archer M. Huntington.

CACHE COUNTY FAIR BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER BEFORE

Many Attracted to the Fair Grounds where the Best Fruit, Vegetables, Cattle and Livestock Produced in the County are on Exhibition.

The annual Cache County Fair opened wide its gates yesterday morning, having one of the finest displays ever shown to the public. "In every department," said President Harris, "we are showing to better advantage than ever before. The cattle, poultry, and in fact the entire live stock exhibit is over crowded with some of the best bred live stock ever exhibited in the state."

President Harris is not alone in speaking of the Fair as he does. Secretary Hovey and Manager George Dunbar with all those who entered the gates are of the same opinion. Without question, the farmers and horticulturists of Cache county have been awakened to the fact that it is profitable to produce the best of its kind in whatever endeavor they center their efforts and the large majority of them are ready and willing to show what can be done when the proper effort is put forth.

Before another year rolls round, the officials of the Fair Association will be compelled to extend their sheds for cattle and livestock. If the calves and yearlings which are being shown at this fair are brought back another year, with the natural increase which can be expected, double the stall capacity will have to be added.

General Exhibits

The main exhibit building is overcrowded with displays, the result of much thought and painstaking on the part of those who have booths. Many manufactured goods of the country are among the exhibits, such as confectionary, blankets, oliments, furniture, bottled and canned fruits, etc.

Upon entering the building to the left will be seen a booth of Cache Valley grown flowers and ferns. The large part of this greenery was grown by the Cache Valley Floral Company, Miss Lucy Armstrong is in charge of this exhibit. Overhead is hung a sign which states, "We don't sell the earth, but we sell blossoms," which sounds the keynote of this exhibit.

Second to the left comes the Cache Valley Drug Company display. The manager, Mr. George Taysum is featuring Utah manufactured goods.

The Ritter Brothers Drug Company, The Rexall Store, has a beautiful booth with a display of Rexall drugs. It catches the eye of the passer for its attractiveness.

The county schools exhibits come next. They include art and needle work from the various grades and a display of potatoes by the Agricultural clubs of the county.

W. F. Jensen's candy display is a new booth added this year. Mr. Jensen has a line of boxed confectionary that is hard to excel anywhere. These goods clearly show that the Jensen candies are among some of the best in this part of the state.

The Marvold Floral Company has a neat little display of greenery.

In the booth of the Lafont Hardware Company which comes next in line, is found a very pleasant as well as fine looking lady demonstrating the famous line of floor stain, Chl-Namel. She always gets a hearing from the passerby.

"The booth designed but not erected" by Mrs. George Taysum, has in it a line of oliments and salves. Many samples of this wonderful salve is being given free distribution by this amiable lady.

The Royal Confectionary Company has a pretty booth, tastefully filled with fine confectionery, the work of Messrs Nielsen and Clark, the present proprietors of this local concern.

Mrs. Jessie M. Baker is in charge of the demonstration of the Baker Lightning Dress Cutting System.

where models of homes erected by this company together with photographs of some forty homes now found in Cache Valley built by this concern. Pictures have been taken of all the homes built in this territory from Wellsville on the south to Weston on the north, including intermediate towns of Richmond, Smithfield and Logan.

The Johnson Bakery has a neat little display of "eats," opposite the Hyde & Thompson booth.

Logan schools come in for considerable space. The B. Y. College and the Logan City schools, each occupy space with displays of art and needle work. The B. Y. College display is bigger and better than ever.

Selby Loda, make up an attractive display for the Logan Arms & Sporting Goods Company.

Frank Harris has charge of the Harris Music Company booth where the famous line of Edison musical instruments are featured. A continual flow of music is heard from these instruments at all times.

Blankets from the Hyrum Woolen Mills add much to the interest of the Fair as they show that it is possible for this valley to become a manufacturing center. Real woolen blankets from wool grown on Cache Valley, sheep, makes one feel proud of the valley in which he lives. It shows we are both an agricultural and manufacturing center and that it would be hard for any section in the country with a like amount of territory to compete with the northern county of Utah.

The Amalgamated Sugar Company as usual has an excellent exhibit of products manufactured from beet sugar, including candies and bottled fruits.

The Murdock Candy Company this year has turned over its booth to Mr. Cyrus Jones who has shown good artistic taste in arranging its line of boxed and loose manufactured candies, so well known throughout Cache Valley for their big variety and excellent quality.

Mrs. S. B. Campbell is in charge of the Ladies Art and Economy department, in which is found many pieces of art and needle work in various designs. There is also in this department several shelves of bottled fruit and a big display of cakes.

The Thatcher Music Company has a booth upon entering the building where a line of musical instruments are displayed.

A large tent has been erected on the north of the main exhibit building where the Agricultural College has its exhibit. This includes work from the industrial departments of the school, such as wood work, iron work and work from the department of domestic arts and science.

The fruit and vegetable exhibit down the center of the exhibit hall is a revelation to people not acquainted with the productiveness of Cache. Reference will be made to the owners of these exhibits at the conclusion of the fair when the judges have reached their decisions as to the winners of the prizes.

E. W. Lundahl and Son, The Logan Monument and Stone Company and many others are exhibiting on the grounds, a complete list of which will be published Thursday, including the cattle and horse exhibits.

THE SIZE OF AN ACRE

What is the most valuable acre on your farm? Are you growing certain crops just because you have got the habit? May there not be a better crop suitable to your soil? What is an acre really worth, anyhow, in productive power? If you could so treat your land as to make it yield twice its former bounty, would that not be high finance indeed?
